Have any of you been to Kansai? Done any research there? I find it really interesting from a cultural and historical standpoint. R1 costs 2,800 yen more than R2, so you have a good deal, since the Seibu-sen is in R2. Let's stick to anime for now. The TV anime and manga are the most popular. I've tried both. For the cost, the animes are worth a look. The manga is good for a bi-weekly read. They also have a good deal of the less popular Shonen Jump. That's where the action chibi. I don't have to keep an inventory of all my anime DVDs, I can just stop and grab one when I see it. I also use Discotek to look up reviews. If I know the title of the manga, I ask myself whether it is worth getting. I watch my Japanese dramas on Netflix too. Rent them when I am on my computer or iWatch when I am on my phone. They are hit or miss for me, but they are cool to look at. We are going to have to wait for another anime thread before we discuss manga. If anyone wants to start a forum for that, start it up and invite me to it. If you are in the East Bay or near Palo Alto, you
