Coburn A holiday-themed horror story set in the early 1900s. A small town in the North East of England is experiencing a disturbing number of hauntings. Ghosts are hanging around the local buildings and people are disappearing one by one. When the locals start to blame the phenomenon on mass murderer Jack the Ripper, things get bad for a small, rural community. Pondering Tricks by Aaron Weigel A ghost story inspired by the history of trick photography. On a cold, snowy night, a lonely boy takes to the road to watch a strange, daring act. Standing watch, in the middle of a dense fog, he witnesses a man planting flowers on a dead man's tombstone. After a hard night's rest, a young boy watches as a photographer takes a series of pictures on a platform overlooking a graveyard. The Boy Who Became a Vampire by David Louis When Nick, the new boy at Kabbit, meets his first vampire, he has to decide whether to become one too, in a story from Canadian horror writer David Louis. In a little-known neighborhood on the south side of Chicago, the new school has never been without oddballs: the old-timer who's still wearing his high-school football jacket; the boy who can't stop mouthing off. This time, however, the new kids at Kabbit aren't just weird—they're monsters. Unholy Ghost by Michael Cammarata A ghost haunts New York City. Haunted. Mourning. Vengeful. She's an eye for an eye, a bullet for a bullet. The ghost of a serial killer, her purpose is to revenge those who dare to cross her. The Ghosts of the Wrekin by Mary Marietta The school nurse, a 82157476af
